Journal of Liberal Arts and Interdisciplinary Sciences

(An Open Access Journal)

Bi-Annual (January & June Issue)

Aim and Scope of the Journal

The Journal of Liberal Arts and Interdisciplinary Sciences is an open-access journal with publishing services facilitated by Spectrum Journal (Powered by Sage), which aims to provide a platform for scholars, researchers, and practitioners to explore and disseminate knowledge that bridges diverse disciplines within the liberal arts. The journal seeks to advance understanding, spark dialogue, and encourage collaboration by addressing complex interconnected societal, cultural, and intellectual challenges through an interdisciplinary, transdisciplinary lens.

The journal will publish peer-reviewed articles, critical essays, case studies, and reviews that explore the convergence of disciplines. It will highlight innovative research methodologies, cross-sector collaborations, and theoretical frameworks that challenge conventional academic norms. JLAIS will also serve as a platform for emerging scholars to contribute fresh perspectives and for established academics to re-examine longstanding paradigms through an interdisciplinary lens.

As global societies grapple with the complexities of cultural globalisation, digital transformation, environmental sustainability, and socio-political shifts, the JLAIS aspires to become a beacon for scholarly excellence and intellectual curiosity. It aims to advance academic discourse and influence policymaking, education, and public understanding, thereby contributing to a more informed and interconnected world. The journal welcomes original research articles, reviews, essays, and case studies from various disciplines within the liberal arts and humanities and their intersections with science, technology, social sciences, and other fields.

Key areas of focus include, but are not limited to:

- Thematic issues comprehensively covering inter-disciplinary aspects of humanities and social sciences
- Intersections of liberal arts with Science, Technology, and Engineering domains.
- Comparative studies of cultures, societies, and histories.
- Globalisation, migration, and transnational studies.
- Ethical dimensions of technology, governance, and social structures.
- Critical theories and perspectives on contemporary issues.
- Interdisciplinary approaches to teaching and curriculum design, and Innovations in liberal arts education.
- Creative writing, visual arts, performing arts, and societal impacts.
- Exploring human-environment interactions through interdisciplinary approaches.

The journal prioritizes submissions demonstrating methodological innovation, theoretical rigour, and a commitment to addressing real-world problems through interdisciplinary collaboration. It invites contributions from academics, practitioners, and thought leaders worldwide.

TOHRI FOUNDATION

Not For Profit Organisation under section 8 (1) of the Companies Act
(Licence Number 140968)

The Organisation for Harnessing Research Innovation (TOHRI) Foundation is a not-for-profit, 80G, NGO, Darpan enlisted philanthropy aiming to work on SDG 1,2,3, 4, 5,7,12, 13 and on the social, economic and environmental domains of sustainability. Sustainability as a concept is often like an abstract emotion of care and affection that gives comfort to the people of society. The emotion can be felt but cannot be seen. TOHRI Foundation attempts to break this gap by launching a set of activities which include action, research, communication, advocacy, capacity and skill building that will focus on different issues pertaining to the social, economic and environmental domains of sustainability.
